Earth, which in that Cafe might be washd from it by the Sea; but is even blended or mixd in with the Stones themselves, so that the Stones must be split into Pieces to come at it. By this Mixture the Rocks are made exceedingly weighty and solid, and thereby still the more qualified to repel the Force of the Sea. Upon this remote Part of the Island we saw great Numbers of that famous kind of Crows, which is known by the Name of the Cornijh Chough: they are the fame kind which are found in Switzerland. among the Alps, and which, Pliny pretended, were peculiar to those Mountains, and calls the Pyrrhocorax. The Body is Black, the Legs, Feet, and Bill, of a Yellow, almost to a Red. I could not find, that it was affected for any good Quality it had, nor is the Flesh good to eat, for it feeds much on Fish and Carrion j it is counted little better than a Kite, for it is of a ravenous Quality, and is very mischievous j it will steal and carry away any think it finds about the House, that is not too heavy, tho not fit for its Food; as Knives, Forks, Spoons and Linen Cloths, or whatever it can fly away with j sometimes, they fay, it has stolen Bits of Firebrands, or lighted Candles, and lodged them in the Stacks of Corn, and the Thatch of Barns and Houses, and set them on Fire. I might take up many Sheets in describing the valuable Curiosities of this little Chersonese, called the Lantss-end, in which lies an immense Treasure, and jnany Things worth Notice, besides those to be found upon the Surface: but I am too near the End ot this Letter. If I have Opportunity, I shall take Notice of some Part of what I omit here, in my Return by the Northern Shore of the County. In the mean time, lam, &c. The enp A/Vol, I.
