

Gulf War Air Power Survey - Volume 1: Planning and Command and Control: Official USAF Report on Persian Gulf War Desert Storm, Instant Thunder, Shock & Awe and the 100 Hour Ground War

From 16 January through 28 February 1991, the United States and its allies conducted one of the most operationally successful wars in history, a conflict in which air operations played a preeminent role. The Gulf War Air Power Survey was commissioned to review all aspects of air warfare in the Persian Gulf for use by the United States Air Force. The Survey has produced reports on planning, the conduct of operations, the effects of the air campaign, command and control, logistics, air base support, space, weapons and tactics, as well as a chronology and a compendium of statistics on the war. The Survey was an attempt to provide a comprehensive and documented account of the war. It is not a definitive history: that will await the passage of time and the opening of sources (Iraqi records, for example) that were not available to Survey researchers. Nor is it a summary of lessons learned: other organizations, including many within the Air Force, have already done that. Rather, the Survey provides an analytical and evidentiary point of departure for future studies of the air campaign. It concentrates on an analysis of the operational level of war in the belief that this level of warfare is at once one of the most difficult to characterize and one of the most important to understand. The Survey was directed by Dr. Eliot Cohen of Johns Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies and was staffed by a mixture of civilian and military analysts. It was divided into task forces, most of which were run by civilians working temporarily for the Air Force. Throughout, the Survey strived to conduct its research in a spirit of impartiality and scholarly rigor. Its members had as their standard the observation of Mr. Franklin D. Olier, chairman of the United States Strategic Bombing Survey during and after the Second World War: We wanted to burn into everybody's souls that fact that the surveys responsibility . . . was to ascertain facts and to seek truth, eliminating completely any preconceived theories or dogmas. This first report in this volume deals with the genesis and development of the plan for the air campaign of the Gulf War as executed in Operation Desert Storm; the second report explains how the United States air forces were organized, what challenges faced the command and control process, and how the commanders dealt with them. Partial Contents: Instant Thunder and Desert Shield Net Assessment of the Opposing Sides The Opening Days: Final Plan and the Scripted War Friction and the Conduct of Operations Diminished Attack on the Center Air Against Iraqs Ground Forces The 100-Hour Ground War 732 pages; dozens of photos, illustrations and charts. This is a Print Replica that maintains the formatting and layout of the original edition and offers many of the advantages of standard Kindle books.
