

Sams Reviews

Sams Reviews by Jan Irving When Sam Masterson, a former marine in a wheelchair, clashes with Tall Hollander, he doesn't expect the sexy architect to reawaken him as a man. Sam Masterson owns a building where a lot of misfits make a home. When his working class neighbourhood comes under pressure because of a shiny new development, he heads uptown to speak his mind to the man behind the gentrification. Architect Tall Hollander is not what he expects: slinky and up front about finding Sam hot. But before he can risk his heart, Sam has to be a hero again. For his nephew, who needs him to step up, and for his residents, who are sorely in need of his skills as a warrior to protect them from the brutal thief known as The Bruiser Jan Irving About the Author:

Jan Irving has worked in all kinds of creative fields, from painting silk to making porcelain ceramics, to interior design, but writing was always her passion.

She feels you can't fully understand characters until you follow their journey through a story world. Many kinds of worlds interest her, fantasy, historical, science fiction and suspense but all have one thing in common, people finding a way to live together in the most emotional and erotic fashion possible, of course!
