

The Fisheye Files - Twisted Leaves

Back of the book blurb: Bryan Alter has a few more problems than most fifteen year olds. His wheelchair? No, hes use to that. But a strange dream leads him to a crime which his dad, the FBI agent in charge, doesnt seem to think is important. Then theres his quirky live-in cousin...and the steampunk girl next door...and the scary school janitor...and the vindictive quarterback...and the hateful cheerleader. Oh, and his moms the principal. Other than that its all good. Well, except for one other little thing. Those emails from God are kind of starting to get on his nerves. Story: Bryans first day at a new school should be simple enough, a field trip to a local tourist site. That is, till he finds himself in the same park he visited the night before in a dream. When a crimes discovered there his dad, an overworked FBI agent, shows little interest. But cryptic messages on his laptop tell the sophomore theres more to this than meets the eye. A body found, a broken cane, stolen computer files, and a crime no ones sure even happened. How can he ignore something God himself seems to be taking an interest in? And how can he convince his dad and everyone else unless he unravels the clues and solves the crime?
