

Non-Continental: Alaska, Hawaii (Lets Explore the States)

Alaska and Hawaii were the last two states to join the United States, admitted in 1859. Although they are very different in many aspects especially size and climate the two states do share several common traits. They are the only states that do not border at least one other U.S. state. This book in the LETS EXPLORE THE STATES series provides information about both of these interesting states, from their geography, history, and government to their economy, population demographics, and major cities. Each title in this series contains color photos, maps, flags, state seals, graphics and back matter including: an index, further reading lists for books and internet resources, and a series glossary.
